

Tom Crehan

Tom Crehan has been a creative writer since the age of six. Unfortunately much of his early work has been lost due to a lack of crayon preservation technology. Today, Tom works in other media but he's still telling stories. A veteran of both the corporate and Hollywood worlds, Tom has 20 years of experience as a writer, producer and story development executive.

Tom served as a staff writer on the first two seasons of MTV's Undressed, helping to launch that show as a solid hit and fan favorite. He then tried his hand at original series and sold TV pilots to companies such as Paramount, Showtime, MTV, and Nickelodeon.

In 2008 Tom created the wild reality competition show Hurl for G4 Network. In addition to writing and producing, he hosted, narrated and performed additional voice acting on the edgy and satirical Hurl... a show the New York Times called "quixotically brave."

Since 2011, Tom has worked regularly on shows for HGTV, Food Network and Travel Channel as a writer, story editor and narrator. Last year he served up a pair of "Best Of" specials for Food Network (Cutthroat Kitchen and Chopped) and just wrapped his fourth season as the voice of HGTV's You Live in What?

Tom continues to write for Hollywood and is currently penning both original series and motion picture projects. When he's not immersed in action-adventure, fantasy and science fiction, he's plotting his long-overdue children's book and working on creative copywriting projects for clients such as Sony Pictures, MGM and Paramount.

Tom is an alumnus of the University of Notre Dame and is a graduate of the prestigious Warner Bros. Comedy Writers Workshop.
